

THE GRANDEST PALACE
IN AMERICA.

These are the moving days, when we are all going into new apartments and thinking they're pretty fine—for a while. But there's nothing in the city to rent that can be compared with a mansion on Fifth avenue that is nearing completion, and which, when it is ready, will be the greatest and most magnificent dwelling-house in America, if not in the world. This is the residence of Senator W. A. Clark, which will have cost $5,000,000 when he moves in. TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY WORLD is privileged to publish the first photographs ever taken of this massive structure, and when you look at them you'll be an unusual person if you don't envy the Senator. The pictures and description make a fine double-page feature.

THE BLIND GIRL WHO WON HER WAY THROUGH VASSAR.

The story of Anne Veronica Ward, of the class of '05, Vassar College, is a remarkable story of the achievements of a girl handicapped in almost every possible way, including the lack of funds. Yet, by work that would stagger the ordinary person with all her senses, this young woman has won her way through college unassisted and gained high honors. The whole story, with Miss Ward's photographs, will be found in TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY WORLD.

NEW YORK'S GREATEST PROBLEM—SCHOOLS.

There are in New York City more school children than the entire population of Boston. All these have to go to school, and the city annually faces the tremendous problem of how to house this vast army. What is being done in the way of new school buildings? What improvements are being made in the greatest public school system in the world? A comprehensive, interesting story for every one to read in TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY WORLD.

LOVE TRAGEDY OF TWO ARTISTS.

Here is one of the prettiest romances, one of the saddest of tragedies, in the story of John Boyle and Helen Hunt, both artists. The young girl has come to her life's end under the most harrowing circumstances, and the young man—no one can tell how the sorrow will finally affect him. It is a sad tale, true in every detail, as told in TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY WORLD.

AN AUSTRALIAN MERMAID COMING HERE.

Not the mermaid of legend, but a beautiful young woman who almost swam the English Channel, and holds some world's records. She is coming to America to battle in the water with some of our women swimmers, and they are ready for her. Who she is, and whom she will have to meet here will be told in TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY WORLD.

GOOD STORIES STILL COMING IN.

The short-story crop is not a failure. If you don't believe this look at the batch in TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY WORLD in the competition for prizes for the best short tales, new or old. TO-MORROW'S lot contains some particularly good ones, which perhaps you know. Maybe yours is among them.

ROOSEVELT'S OWN STORY OF HIS COLORADO
HUNTING TRIP.

The President's own story of his recent hunting trip in Colorado, when he earned the reputation of being a mighty bear hunter, will appear soon in one of the leading magazines. In TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY WORLD some excerpts will be found from it. At the present moment nothing could be of more interest than any story from the President.

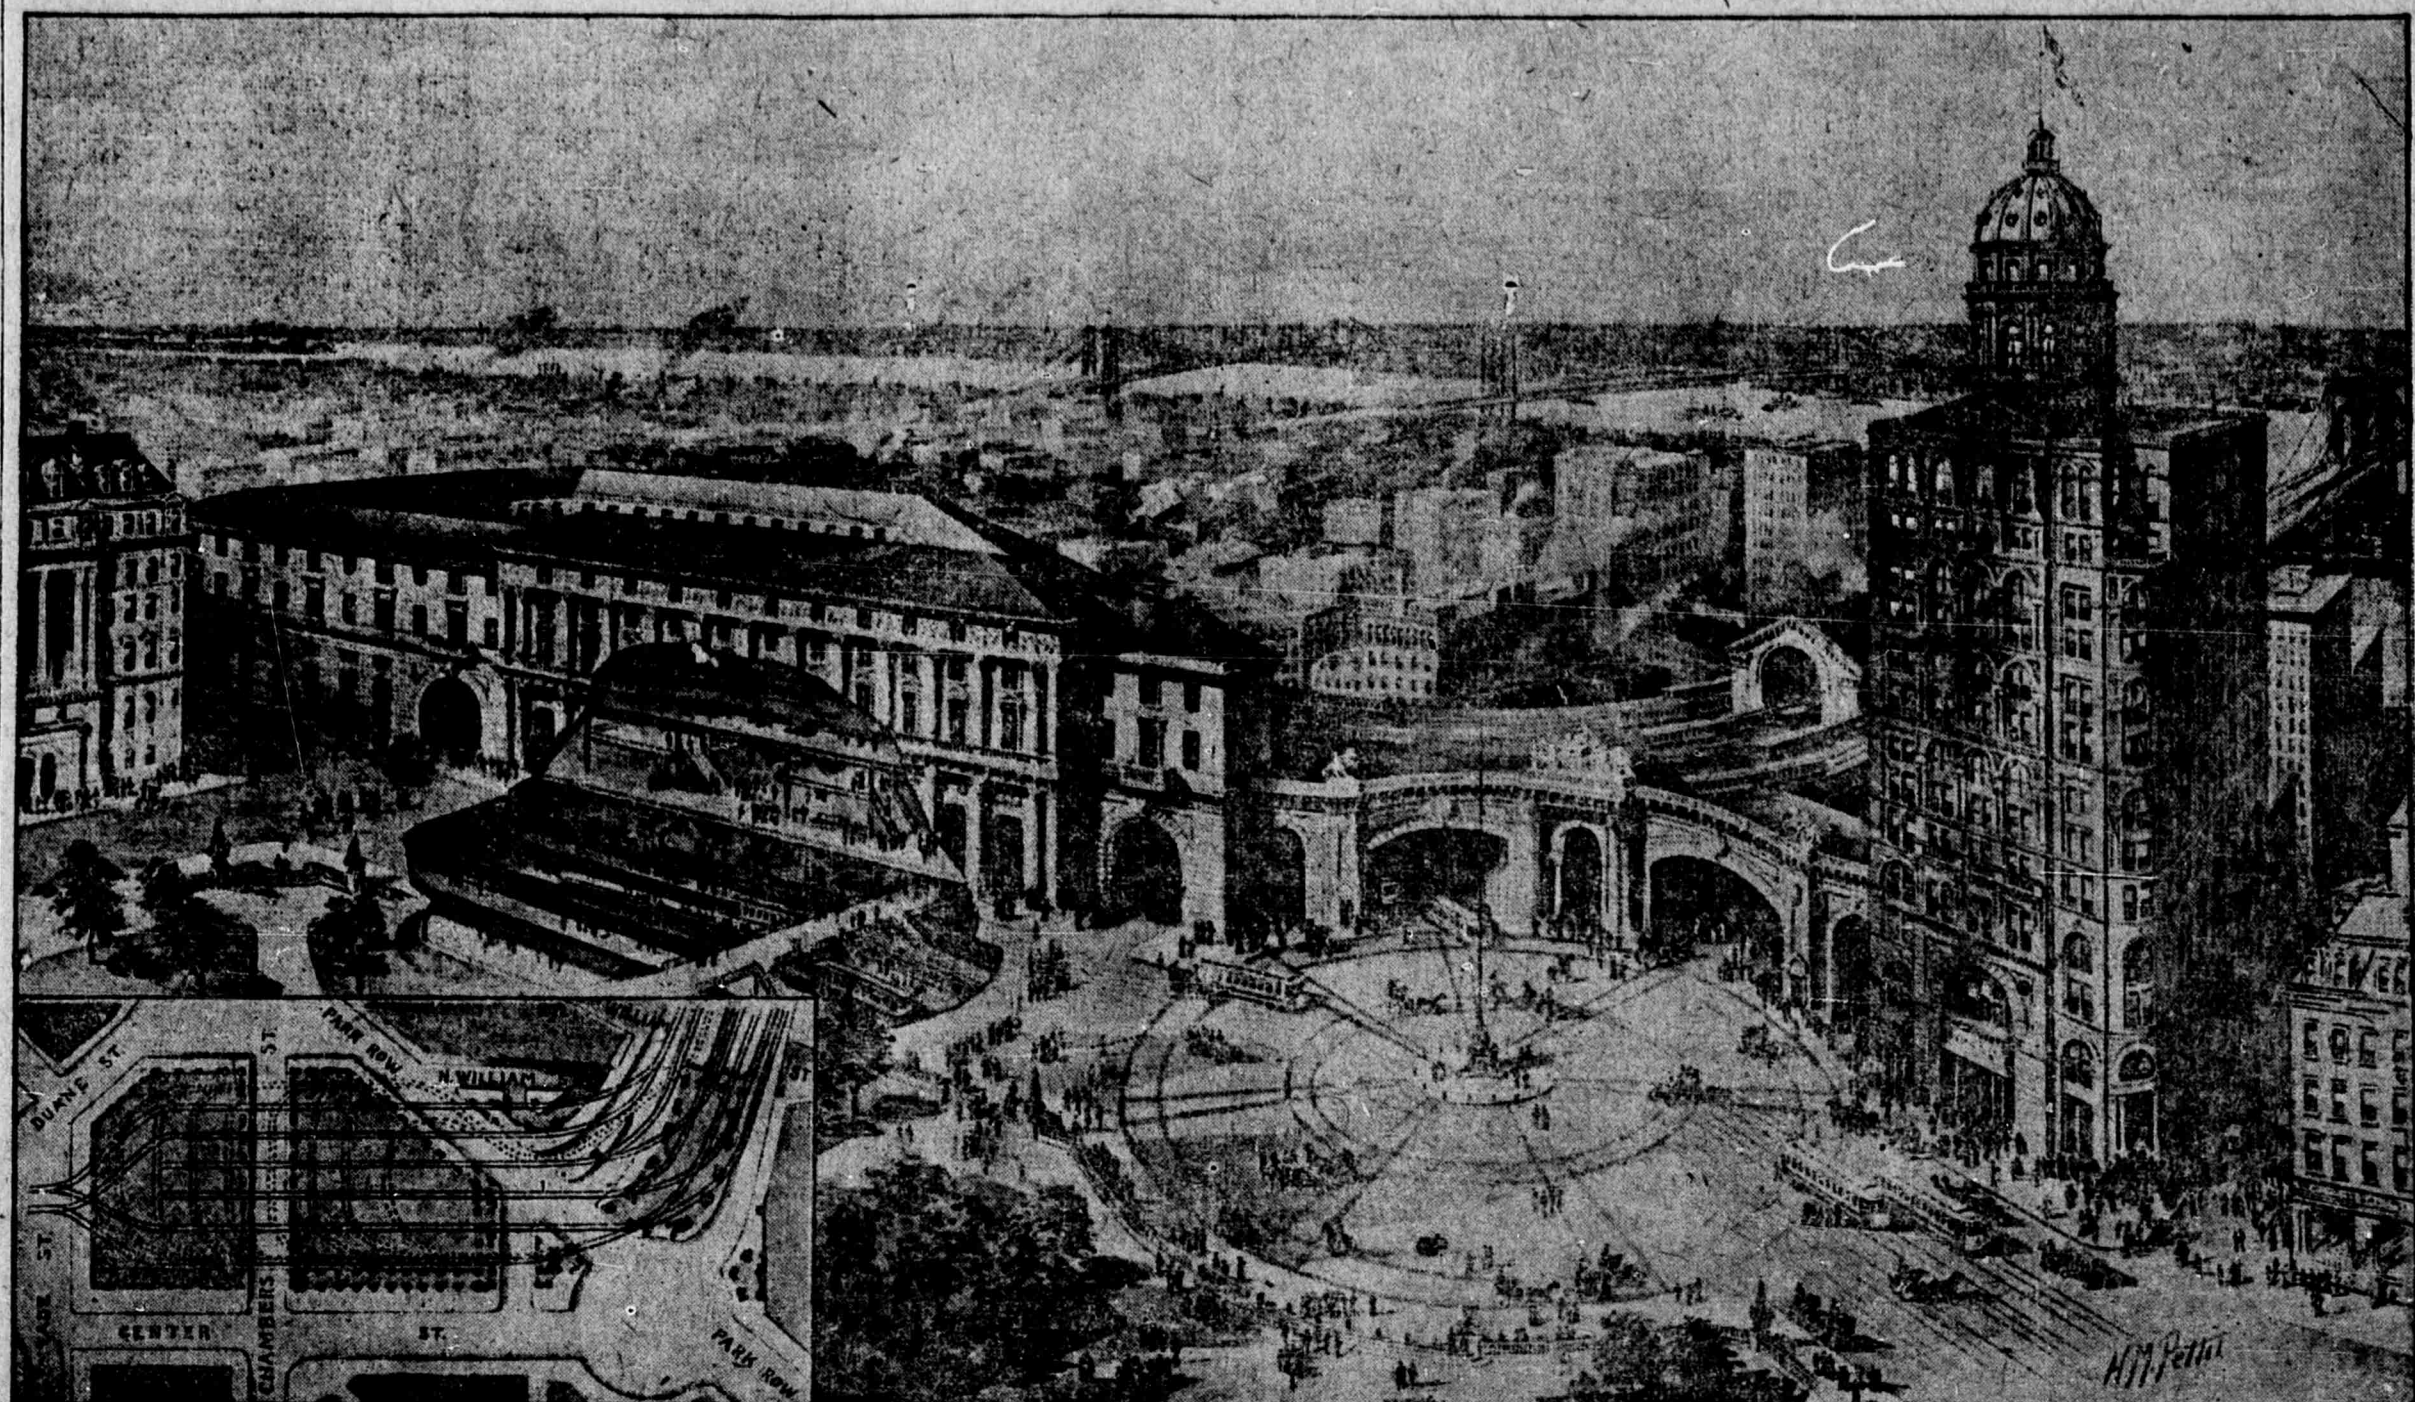

TWO GREAT STORIES—
O. HENRY—
SHERLOCK HOLMES.

What pair of writers are more popular today than Conan Doyle and O. Henry? The Sherlock Holmes stories are as entertaining today as when the first one was written, and as for O. Henry, there is no doubt that this young writer holds the public more firmly than any contemporary author. TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY WORLD will, as usual, contain stories by both Dr. Doyle and O. Henry, and you will do well not to miss them.

HUNTING BEARS IN NEW YORK CITY.

It is interesting as President Roosevelt's story of a bear hunt in the Adirondacks, and how a brave hunter killed a bear in the Adirondacks, and how a brave hunter killed a bear in the Adirondacks, and how a brave hunter killed a bear in the Adirondacks.

PROPOSED NEW MANHATTAN TERMINAL OF BROOKLYN BRIDGE

FROM HARPER'S WEEKLY, COPYRIGHT 1905 BY HARPER BROTHERS

IN remodelling the Manhattan terminal of the Brooklyn Bridge the Bridge Department will urge the Board of Estimate to hasten the work of finally acquiring the block of property on which stands Leggett's Hotel, the Staats Zeitung Building and other less pretentious structures that needed space may be had for building of the proposed handsome station and semi-office building structure designed to permanently relieve congestion.

The proposed terminal building is an object of architectural beauty. It is a modified Renaissance design, in keeping with the Hall of Records. The extension is to be carried across Park Row and Centre street in the form of a great circular elevated plaza, from which direct access to all Bridge trains and cars will be obtained.

The terminal station itself extends north at right angles to the bridge and will continue as far as Duane street, arching over Chambers street. The terminal plot will extend across Duane street as far north as the south side of Pearl street, that ample space will be afforded for the switching of trains. The station building will include a basement below the street level for the surface trolley lines, a mammoth assembly-room for passengers, a gallery floor for the distribution of passengers coming from the elevated road and the bridge trains, a third or track floor for the disposition of bridge tracks and platforms and numerous entrances and exits. Park Row to Duane street will be an arcade, while the station itself will provide a handsome and ornamental entrance to the bridge and elevated stations. It is pointed out that at present the number of trains running across the bridge are limited by station facilities, but with the new idea in practice the number of trains will only be limited by the capacity of the bridge itself.

The acquisition of property and the cost of the structure is calculated at $10,000,000. It was originally proposed to erect above the proposed terminal extension a giant municipal building, but this plan has been abandoned because of the prohibitive cost. Commissioners Best said today that if the courts do not interfere in behalf of interested property owners who desire to retain their holdings on the block proposed to be taken the

KILLED MAN IN ROAD WHO CHASED WIFE

Former Athlete and Ball-Player Shot Dead in Wilmington, Del.

(Special to The Evening World.)

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 23.—Howard Bullock, formerly a prominent athlete and baseball player, was shot and instantly killed by C. Preston Herring last night. Herring at once surrendered himself to the police with the explanation that the shooting was not done with malice or the intention of inflicting a fatal wound.

"My wife and I were on our way home from the theatre," said Herring, "and when we reached a dark and lonely road we saw, down to rest a few minutes."

"Suddenly a man leaped over the hedge back of us. My wife jumped to her feet, frightened and excited, and started to run away. The man ran after her. I drew a revolver and ordered him to stop. When he refused to halt I fired, intending to scare him. He kept on running and I fired again and again."

"Suddenly the man stopped and I then hurried back to my wife and took her home. I went out to see if the man had gone and discovered him lying in the road dead. The bullet had struck him in the face."

HAGUE TRIBUNAL
HIT FOR AWARD

Samuel R. Thayer Condemns
Preferential Rights Accorded England and Germany Over
U. S. in Venezuela Matter.

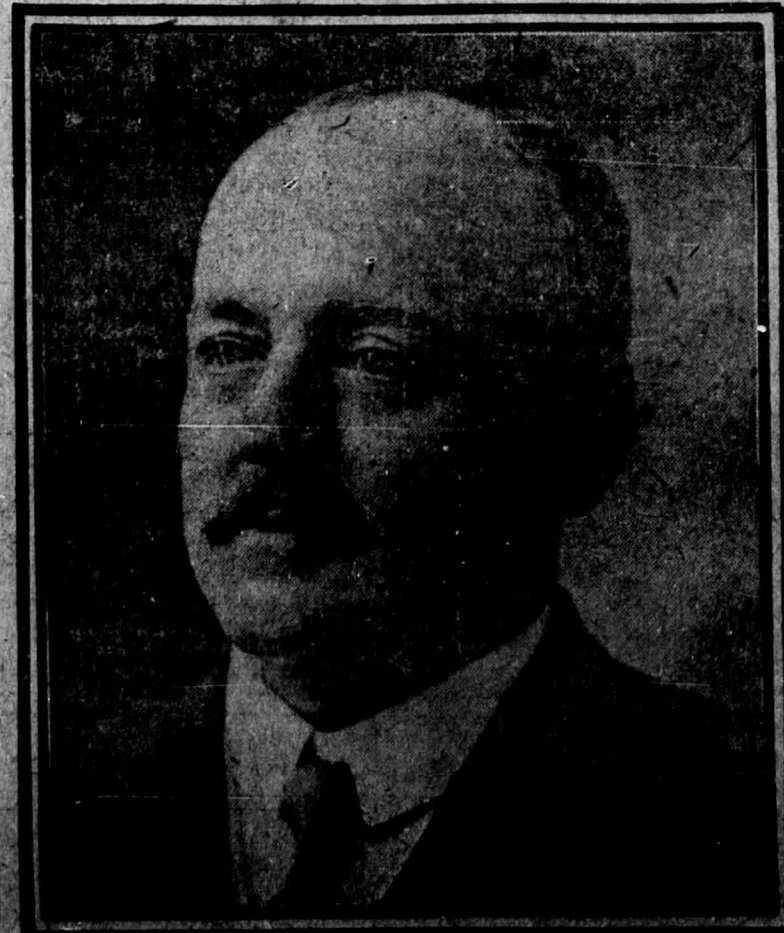

LUCERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 23.—A small sensation was created during the session of the National Peace Congress today by sharp criticism of The Hague Tribunal by Samuel R. Thayer said: "The utterly erroneous and perfectly indefensible decision of The Hague Tribunal in the Venezuela matter, whereby, in a court of equity, preferential rights are accorded to England and Germany over the United States and other powers, has awakened the disapproval, if not the condemnation, of the friends of arbitration everywhere."

"That a premium should be bestowed upon the powers in question, for putting in jeopardy the very existence of a weak power, over a matter which public opinion finally compelled those same powers to submit to a third party determination has done much to unsettle the confidence of the public in that tribunal as well as the equity of its judgments."

Mr. Thayer expressed confidence in the early formation of an arbitration treaty between the United States and Great Britain. Such an agreement, he said, will be followed by treaties of a like character with other nations and so open the way for a general disarmament throughout the world.

STRANGE FATAL
FIRE MISHAPS

Remarkable Coincidences in the Injury of a Woman and a Child, Widely Separated but at Same Hour.

Two fire alarms turned in at the same moment from two widely separated parts of the city to-day marked the fatal injury by fire of two persons, one nearing the end of life, the other just beginning it. One alarm was from the five-story tenement at No. 22 St. Mark's place, Manhattan, the other from the cozy cottage at No. 5319 Third avenue, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Anna Mollis, aged fifty, was working about her flat at the St. Mark's address when a gleam of her gown brushed against a gas light and became ignited. The woman ran through the hall, down the stairway and into the street, her movements fanning the flames until they spread to all her clothing.

Two women passing by saw her burst from the door of the tenement. They picked up a big burlap bag from the gutter and smothered the flames. Dr. Carter, before taking the injured woman to Bellevue, said that she would probably die.

Arthur Nolan, three years old, was alone in the bathroom of the cottage at the Brooklyn address. He found a tin of matches and began to light them. Smoke was arising.

His mother, a woman twenty-six years old, heard his screams and rushed to his aid. She was too late, however, to extinguish the flames. The child was taken to Bellevue, where he is now lying.

TENDERLOIN IS NOT WICKED, SAYS DOOLEY

Farmer-Captain Looks It Over and Says Coney Island
Is Twice as Bad.

Police Captain Dooley, the new commander of the Tenderloin, who has been dubbed Farmer Dooley in his new precinct because he hails from Gravesend, looked over his territory last night and during the early hours of this morning and then said he didn't think the Tenderloin was half as bad as it had been painted.

"Wags, Coney Island, innocent as it is, is twice as bad as this place. I didn't see anything very wrong anywhere. There were lots of women on the streets, but, good gracious, you cannot arrest a woman for walking on a public thoroughfare. I see they have quoted me as telling my men to arrest every woman they see who walks along the street more than a certain number of times. I didn't do that at all. I have got better sense."

"I want to the Haymarket. Miles O'Reilly said it was a terrible place, but I didn't see any great harm there. They were dancing and having a good time and I could see no reason for me to interfere with them. Then there are those reports to twenty girls and the other side of the street with the big women and the little girls. I don't see any harm in that. I don't see any harm in that. I don't see any harm in that."

MAYOR AND SHERIFF EASY
FOR SHARPER

Trio of Swindlers Rake in Large Sums from Connecticut Officials.

WORKED MANY TOWNS.

Believed to Have Netted Thousands in Their Tour of the Nutmeg State.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 22.—The harvest reaped by the trio of sharpers who have been working the city as collectors for an alleged convention of the American Federation of Labor is astounding. They are now believed to have operated in all of the important cities of the State, and to have netted thousands. Detectives are seeking them and their arrest is expected soon.

The first announcement of their existence appeared in The Evening World yesterday. Not only have they victimized merchants and women, but actually dared to go into the police buildings and get money from the officials, including the county sheriff and others.

Among those from whom they secured subscriptions were Sheriff Dunham, New Haven County, $25; Sheriff Sydnay, E. Hawley, of Fairfield County, $25; Senator Allan W. Paige, $10; Town Clerk Schreiber, $5; Tax Collector Donnelly, $5; Mayor Honney, of Hartford, the Bridgeport Trust Company, $10, banks for sums ranging from $10 to $25.

Very Easy.

They also worked merchants, business men and women. They have worked the towns of Hartford, Meriden and other cities, saying the alleged convention was to be held in the particular town in which they were operating.

In working these towns they presented in each case long lists of names of prominent men with their contributions down, and in many cases got sums of $25 or more.

There are three men in the gang, one of them said to be a shady gambler from West Hartford. Two of them make the calls, an old man and a young one, while the third keeps watch outside for the police.

The old man gave his name as Bible and the young man gave his as Murphy. Sheriff Dunham, of New Haven County, in speaking of their visit, said: "They came to me with a paper containing a long list of New Haven business men. I signed it, but I believe this paper has been the one used in connection with the alleged subscription paper. I am convinced the solicitors were frauds. They secured hundreds in this city and many prominent men were victimized."

It was to Sheriff Hawley they gave the names of Bible and Murphy. The police in all the cities of the State are looking for the swindlers and their descriptions have been sent to every town of any size.

The lists of those who were taken in at Waterbury, Meriden and many of the other cities are yet to be reported. The circumstances were reported to the Federation of Labor, and P. J. Connelley, of Danbury, an officer of that body, pronounced the swindlers frauds and requested their arrest. He also stated that the Federation will bear the cost of prosecution.

Mr. Connelley also stated that the Federation is to hold a convention in New Haven, but no solicitors have been sent out to collect funds.
